Undetermined age

Belle-Aire is a two-and-one-half-story five-bay frame house with a one-and-one-half-story frame wing, both of undetermined date of construction. Thomas Goldsborough, who owned the property in the late 18th century, named the estate Belle-Aire. His son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. John Barnett, who moved to the property immediately after 1808, are usually given credit for beginning construction of at least part of the present house some time after 1808. The kitchen wing is probably older than the large block of the house.
